Myself and Polly Carter. Bright is the tint of the autumn leaf When first the fall frost nips it;

To the mouth that gently sips it. But better far than autumn leaf. Than cayenne pepper smarter,

Smart is the red pepper and older mixed,

Is the pride of my heart, my own true love, My gentle Polly Carter. I loved her when a little girl, And loved her more when older,

And never once shall I forget When first my love I told her, She blushed, and aighed, and turned her head, (Her eyes were filled with water), I took her hand within my own,

And whispered "Polly Carter. She only blushed a deeper red, And sweeter looked than ever, My heart, it seemed to run a race

With my old "patent lever;" I told her that I loved her well, And that I ne'er would barter For a: ght on earth, however prized, The love of Poll, Carter.

I told her that I had a farm-Well till a was every acre-And that I had a snug farm-house To which I longed to take her: And told her that unless she'd go. For life I'd be a martyr To Cupid's cause, and break my heart

For gentle Polly Carter. She turned, and O, how sweet she smiled And said she loved me dear!y; Then what cared I for aught beside? I was quite blest, or nearly;

The "old folks" said we might be wed, And ne'er did I feel emarter Tazu when the parson made us one-Myself and Polly Car er.

Sir, I would not remain on this floor a moment if I supposed that in any act or vote I was not well founded. That despatch, as I recollect it— the subject are. The word "hereafter" does not apply to it. It is now here under discussion. If the constitution is not false or erroneous impression, I do not think it is here, certainly the message and documents on well founded. That despatch, as I recollect it— the subject are. The word "hereafter" in the I give it word for word as nearly as I can-was resolution, like the President's language in his vention had adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we are still in favor of the great doctrine of the Kansas Nebrasks act, and that by a practical application of that doctrine box any constitution that may be framed for demnatory of my course, would, if it were a true their government; and therefore, no Territory should be admitted into the Union as a State presenting the democratic party of my State. I without a fair expression of the will of the people will call attention to the resolution as published being first had upon the constitution accompany without a fair expression of the will of the people

It seems that the telegraph subbstituted the word "therefore" for "hereafter," and that is the only variation in the despatch. But is it true that that despatch conveyed the idea that the administration had been condemned, when it stated in so many words "Cincinnati, platform endorsed: administration sustained: and also the tollowing resolution adopted?" That was the despatch. There was no possibility of any misconstruction. Whether the "following resoevery one could judge for himself; but cortainly the despatch did not say so. The only question is, whether the telegrapher, in mistaking the word "hereafter" for the word "therefore, changed its sense at all. The resolution as passed by the convention, is:

"That we are still in favor of the great doc trine of the Kansas Nebraska act, and that, by a practical application of that docrine, the people of a state or territory are vested with the right of ratifying or rejecting at the ballot-box any constitution that may be framed for their was designed for the purpose—justifies the government; and that hereafter no territory supported the view maintained by the senator should be admitted into the Union as a state from Illinois in opposition to the President's without a fair expression of the will of the people should be admitted into the Union as a state of Guatemala. opinion that it may be the lesser of evils, in view being first had upon the constitution accompany- the United States to Liverpool. of all the circumstances, past and present, in ing the application for admission."

That resolution declares that the Kansas-Nebraska bill required that the people should have an opportunity of voting for or against their constitution before it was admitted. The resolution declares that, by the Nebraska act, the right to vote for or against was a vested right. Does it propose, then, to take from the people of Kansas a right vested by the organic act-a right guarantied by the Cincinnati platform—a right endorsed and reaffirmed by the President's the right to vote for or against the constitution being vested by the Kansas Nebraska act, hereafter no territory should be admitted as a state unless that fair expression has been had and shall accompany the application for admissson. The peaple of Kansas have not yet applied for admission. They have not yet sent up their constitution, though it is probable that during the present session thep will send it here. It is prabable that "hereafter"-to wit: during this session-they will send up that constitution; and the Indiana convention say that that constitution should not be accepted unless it be accompanied with evidence that it was adopted by the people on a fair vote, when they had a right to vote, for or against that constitution.

Sir take that resolution as it is; and if I understand it aright, it ir a clear and unequivocal expression of opinion that when Kansas shall come with a constitution, if there is not the evidence ballot box for ratification or rejection, rt should not be admitted into the Union. "Hereafter" implies that the application is to be made "here tion of Indiana on the 8th of January resterated after in contradistinction to the cases cited in sition we have admitted States without their constitutution being first submitted to the people; tor instance the Florida case, and perhaps one or two others; but "hereafter" it is not to be Paris. done. PROSPECTUS OF THE

INDIA VA STATE SENTINEL.

It is the intention of the Proprietors of the Sentinel to make it in all respects a newspaper worthy the support of the Democracy of Indiana. And in the proportion its circulation is increased and its advertising patronage enlarged will be our abily to add to its interest. Having no local Agents, we depend entirely upon the efforts of our political friends to extend its circulation. In no cheaper or more effectual way can political intelligence be circulated, zeal excited and party organization preserved, than through the medium of the press. All, then, who are desirous of the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and editor are carried to the success of Damocratic rainging and the success of Damocratic rainging a principles and policy, can serve the cause in no better way than in extending the circulation of the or public interest we shall give full and reliable intelligence. An important State election occurs in next October. A new Legislature, members of Congress, Supreme Judges, and most of the State officers are to be elected It is only by sleepless vigilance and untiring effort that we can expect to maintain the supremezy of the Democratic party. through all the disastrous times, now we hope coming to a close. With the assets, set aside previous to October last, to be devoted to the completion to Chicago, and the material aid of the public spirited citizens of Porter and Lake counties in Indiana, the Company has been able sidily, although with a slow pace, to push fortward their work; and in this they are very greatly indebted to the persevering energy and ound discretion of Hon Samuel Hanna, a member of the Board from Fort Wayne The rate of sprogress of the work for the past six months has not been equal to the vast interests already in-volved in the line—direct interest to the extent of fifteen millions of dollars, and contingent interests Articles of Consolidation," and of the commerce of the country, that the road shall be completed to the country. It was this aspect of the case that induced the Board of Directors to look beyond their own present means, and to offer inducements to energetic capitalists to come forward with the r capital and join it with certain valuable assets of the coming summer. To carry out this plan, the Board of Directors have tendered to Mr Thomson the post of Chief Engineer of the Company with ample powers, and, as they believe means to accomplish the object; and although Mr Thomson has not formally accepted the trust, I have good reason to believe that he will, and at once enter upon the straties assigned him, in which event, as everybody knows, with him to undertake is to accom-

the Company, and complete the road to Chicago,

With this road completed from its own Depot grounds in the City of Chicago, to track of nosylvania Railroad in this city. I believe it the most valuable property of the kind for its likely to be injuriously effected by the constant Rectuations of population, commerce and trade. I have no hesitation in placing this opinion upon regord, although the enterprise has been carried along from its inception in 1848 to the present moment by an unceasing struggle, and the struggle must continue, until the good for which the Company set out ir reached, when an ample risward will be found for all the energies and means expended.

The sacrifices of the past have fallen upon the stockholders, those for the short future (and it need be but short with proper co operations) are expected to be borne equitably and fairly by bond holders and general creditors, as well as stockholders. A mite from each will accomplish the work.

Speaker Orr and Vice President Breckinridge. -The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce thus handsomely notices the presiding officers of the two Houses of Congress: "When the Speaker presides, there is, of course, more order and pertinency, and we eirn that Mr Orr, despite the difficulties he will have to contend with, will, from his genial gentlemanly bearing, make a popular presiding officer. It is a good symptom of the condition of public Congressional sentiment, which usually reflects the general sentiments of the country, that, as in the days of Langdon Cheves, the House should select a South Carolinian as its presiding officer. It seems to recognize his once erratic State as preside, with much dignity and aptitude. Unlike all his predecessors in that chair, he does not exhibit the first gray hair in his head, which is coal-black. True, an unusual number of young or young-looking Senators occupy the chamber, but the Senate is technicall an assemblage of seniors, and the heads of such members as Collamer, Crittenden and Gwin wear the livery of age, but the deep respect courtesy of Mr. Breckinridge combine well with his intellectual ability and penetration to make him a firstrate presiding officer. Myself and Polly Carter. Bright is the tint of the autumn leaf

When first the fall frost nips it; Smart is the red pepper and older mixed.

To the mouth that gently sips it. But better far than autumn leaf. Than cayenne pepper smarter, Is the pride of my heart, my own true love,

My gentle Polly Carter. I loved her whon a little girl,

And loved her more when older. And never once shall I forget When first my love I told her, Bhe blushed, and sighed, and turned her head,

I took her hand within my own, And whispered "Polly Carter. She only blushed a deeper red,

And sweeter looked than ever. My heart, it seemed to ruit a race With my old "patent lever;" I told her that I loved her well, And that I ne'er would barter

(Her eyes were filled with water),

For a ght on earth, however prized, The love of Poll, Carter. I told her that I had a farm-Well till a was every acreand that I had a enug farm house

To which I longed to take her; And told her that unless sho'd go, For life l'd be a martyr To Cupid's cause, and break my heart For gentle Polly Cartet.

She turned, and O, how sweet she smiled . And said she loved me dearly; Then what cared I for aught beside ! I was quite blest, or nearly;

The "old folks" said we might be wed, And he'er did I feel emarter Tiru when the parson made us one-Myself and Polly Car er.

to be introduced at the same time as Mr Buchanan eschews "private interviews," unless upon affairs of State. They were invited to be seated, and the President conversed to them in a very cordial manner. Of course neither of the gentlemen wished to broach the subject of his appointment before the other, and therefore sat in a very perturbed and wretched state of mind, endeavoring however, to wear the aspect of intense satisfaction at beholding, face to face, the venerable President of the Republic. Finally, the President manifested a slight anxiety to be left alone, and the two gentlemen reluctantly, and saddened by the "sickening pangs of hope deferred," arose to take their leave. It was an affecting scene.-Taking each by the hand with honest cordiality, Mr. Buchanan said My friends, I am very glad to see you--very glad. I am happy to meet with two such promising young Democrats, who have come all the way from Cincinnati to see mo, and (cocking his eve in that peculiar style of his) neither of you asks for an office 1 Good day gootlemen." The "pheeling" of the niore said "promising young Democrats" can be imngined, as they were politely bowed out of the reception-room. It is removed with how much truth Leannot say that they instantly repaired to the nearest "refreshment" saloon, and took un exaggerated drink "in silence standing"

It is amuing to hear the Black Republicans land Judge Douglas! Hands off, gentlemen. None of your soap! A few weeks ago you set your 300 clorgymen into him, who in the name of "Almighty God" anothernatised and denounced him as a child of the devil and hardly fit to be damned. You called him Stephen Arnold Douglas you passed resolutions declari ig that you were ashamed that he was born in Vermout; you declared that Vermout was disgraced by giving him birth; you hung him in effigy you burnt him in effigy, and now, without his having changed an iota from the position he first took on the Kunsas act you are trying to kilf him with your approval! Speaker, Orr, and Vice President Breckinridge -The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce thus handsomely notices the presiding efficers of the two Houses

"When the Speaker presides, there is, o course, more order and pertinency, and we'e irn that Mr. Orr despite the difficulties he will have to contend with, will, from his genial gentlemanly bearing, make a popular presiding officer. It is a good symptom of the condition of public Congressional sentiment, which usually reflects the general sentiments of the country, that, as in the days of Langdon Cheves, the House should select a South Carolinian as its presiding officer. It seems to recognize his once erratic State as in full communion with the other States of the Confederacy. The Vice President is said to preside with much dignity and aptitude. Unlike all his predecessors in that chair, he does not exhibit the first gray hair in his head, which is chal-black. True, an unusual number of young or young-looking Senators occupy the chamber, but the Senato is technicall an assemblage of seniors, and the heads of such members as Collamer, Crittenden and Gwin wear the livery of age, but the deep respect courtesy of Mt.
